

3. Verified Response: Legal tender laws in the US require businesses to accept cash (dollars), meaning it is illegal for a business to operate as cash-free.

Response: It is illegal for a business to be cash-free in the US.

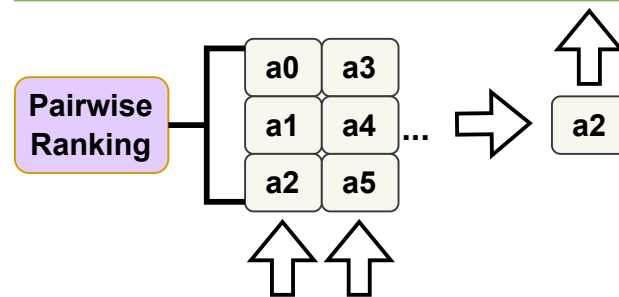

Mutation m1: American law forbids companies from rejecting cash as a payment method.

■ ■ ■

Prompt: The base response may contains hallucinations or factual errors. Verify facts step-by-step and ...

MutRepair Answer: There is no universal requirement in U.S. “Legal tender” means U.S. coins and currency can be used to discharge debts, not that all businesses must accept cash.

Repaired Answer a1: U.S. legal tender laws do not prohibit cashless businesses; they define what counts as valid money for debts, not what stores must accept for transactions....